City Planners Set New Zoning Ord. Time Schedule

Carmel planning commissioners adjourned yesterday afternoon to August 10, 4:00 o'clock, when they will receive a revised chairman's committee report on the proposed new central district zoning ordinance, and set a date for a public hearing as soon as possible after the legal ten-day interval.

In light of opinions expressed by council members at last week's joint study session with the planning commission, the chairman's committee has eliminated some "uses" they had allowed in the proposed ordinance, and also the off-street parking provisions, which need "intensive study later", according to Herbert Blanks, planning commission chairman.

By the end of August commissioners will send the revised ordinance to the city council. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Blanks indicated that the council could hold public hearings in September, also first reading of the ordinance, and be finished by the end of October.

This schedule would leave 30 days for "major emergencies", Mr. Blanks added, and allow the ordinance to be in effect before November 30, expiration date of the interim zoning ordinance extension.

The business district is divided in the ordinance into four zones, C-1 (retail shops) central core; surrounded by C-1-S (shops, commercial services, light industry, motels and hotels); C-2 (heavy industrial uses) at the northeast corner of the business district; and C-1-L, a small zone for designated multiple dwelling use, mostly situated adjacent to the residence zone on each side of Ocean Avenue, Monte Verde to Casanova Streets.

One of the three properties of this proposed C-1-L zone is the Pine Inn. Owner Harrison Godwin has requested the planning commission to include his property in the proposed C-1-S zone, instead.

Commissioners yesterday afternoon asked City Attorney John Morse to prepare a resolution requesting the city council to amend the municipal code so that the city will not have to mail notices to property owners when the city initiates rezoning of land, a time limit of one year to be set. Mr. Morse reported the time limit satisfied clients represented by Attorney George Walker who protested the amendment at a public hearing.

They also recommended to the council that the city acquire for

Editor's Column

This issue of the Pine Cone carries on page seven legal publication of the Carmel Unified School District Budget and a notice of public hearing on the budget at the high school, August 3, 7:30 o'clock in the music building.

The budget and notice of public hearing is published in the Pine Cone each year as required by law, but we cannot remember anyone's ever coming before the board to protest any items in the budget, though the total determines the school tax rate for the next year.

We feel that this year protest is warranted against the 10 cents community service tax. Half of that amount is more than adequate to support the year-around school recreation program. When new legislation in Sacramento empowered the school boards to increase this tax from five to ten cents, our board did so, diverting the additional money to capital outlay projects such as paving and fencing school playfields which are used in the school physical education program and should be improved through school bond money or other capital outlay funds.

Now that the Carmel Youth Center's source of support from the community chest has been cut off and the center is on notice that the school district's $3,500 contribution will cease next year, the $16,000 plus, needed to operate the youth center, will have to be raised by a fund drive.

Since Carmel must support its major recreation facility through public contribution, it seems unjustifiable that Carmel taxpayers should have to pay in addition a ten cent recreation tax to the school district, especially when less than half of that is needed for school district recreation purposes.

If the school board wishes to retain the ten cents tax it should cease diverting it to non-recreational purposes and assume the entire support of the Carmel Youth Center, otherwise, this tax should be cut to five cents, which for years has been adequate to provide a luxurious year-around school district recreation program.

Briefs...

The idea originated with Corum Jackson, who passed it on to the executive board of the Carmel Business Association: a housewarming for the remodelled postoffice, a public reception to be held some Sunday soon; the business association to be hosts. Bob Spencer, president of the business association, and the executive committee found it a "Carmelish idea" and appointed August Nieto chairman of the refreshment committee. Postmaster Fred Strong, pleased with the project, will arrange to have his staff at the postoffice on party day to show the guests what goes on "on the other side of the boxes."

We'll let you know the date as soon as it is set. You're all invited, of course.

Picture of the week belongs to the Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas, acting chairman of the Bach Festival board of directors. A waggish friend, seeing Father Nick last week playing his violin in the festival orchestra, attending social affairs and unperturbedly dealing with countless organizational details, was smitten with humorous creativity. A few snips of the scissors removed Bach's flowing wig and jaboted chest from his pictured torso. Several more snips severed a profile of Father Nick's face from his head and shoulders. Wig, jabot and profile were combined, suitably "touched up" and framed to portray Carmel's Harold Matthew Malvern Nicholas Bach, or if you prefer, Johann Sebastian Bach Nicholas, whose spirit spans three centuries.

Bach Festival Review

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

WEDNESDAY MORNING

Of the ancient instruments used in the festival none is more interesting or more satisfactory than the viola da gamba, as played by Eva Heinitz, a consummate artist. She returned to the festival in joint recital with Putnam Aldrich, harpsichordist, at the Woman's Club Wednesday morning and delighted a full-house audience. Heinitz draws from the six strings of the forerunner of the cello, deep and sympathetic tones with fine modulations to express her strong interpretive and emotional qualities. Her temperament is wedded to the instrument so that her playing of the unaccompanied adagio and allegro by Karl Frederick Abel of the Eighteenth Century stirred the audience profoundly and she had to add an extra number. Her engaging talk about the instrument, with explanation of the dynamics applied to the strings with the compared straight and curved bows was a a scientific fact that those who have never drawn a bow over strings would not have known. It is not surprising Heinitz is widely honored as an authoritative performer on the instrument as well as an outstanding individual.

The harpsichord Putnam Aldrich used had the most pleasing quality of tone of any I have heard. It had belonged to Wanda Landowska, the internationally famous harpsichordist, with whom he studied in Paris. Now Professor of Music at Stanford and author of publications on music, Aldrich explained many of the peculiarities of the instrument before performing four Bach Preludes and Fugues and a group by Couperin of Les Fastes de la Grande et Ancienne Menestrandise, a musicians' Union founded in the Twelfth Century. This satirical selection illustrated the characters of the Menestrandise in a strikingly dramatic performance on the instrument usually associated with fluently polyphonic progressions. It demanded occasional handling of both keyboards with one hand and earned interested inquiries at the end of the recital.

THURSDAY MORNING

The Play of Daniel was discussed in a symposium by Alexander Fried, critic on the San Francisco Examiner, Colin Sterne, specialist on ancient instruments, and Dr. Glynne Gladstone Wickham, authority on Early English Stages and director of the play with Charles Thomas assisting. It was a lively discussion of three differing opinions concerning the music as being religious or secular and various other aspects of its origin and meaning. Three of the old instruments used in the play were demonstrated by Sterne, though no claim was made that they were the originals as scripts in those days did not designate them. We had not heard Fried at the festival for several years. It was an enlightening experience that showed Dr. Wickham an authority in his knowledge of the play. All three of the panel answered ques-

COLLECT CAD TAIL LIGHTS

Carmel police apprehended four juveniles with a penchant for Cadillac tail lights last night. Discovered in the youths' car were 17 such lights, eight acquired in Carmel, six in Monterey, three in Pacific Grove, all during this month and from 1960 models.

Officers Walter Bailey and Peter Koenen stopped the youths after they failed to stop their car at the Ocean and Mission stop sign. In a routine check of the vehicle police found the tail lights.

Carmel police received a report that one light was missing on July 15, a second report about another yesterday morning.

CCAL TO GAMBLE WITH FOOTBALL OFFICIALS

In a recent emergency session of the CCAL Board of Managers (principals and two coaches of the Coast Counties Athletic League), it was decided that schoolboy football in this area will be administered by inexperienced officials with no regard for the safety and welfare of the competing players. The football officiating issue has been hanging in the balance for several months as the Coast Counties Officials' Association informed the Board of Managers it would not attempt to officiate the high school games with the three-man crews demanded by the economy-minded governing board. The Officials' Association has been supplying officials for the CCAL for the last fifteen years and the feeling throughout the entire group is that three-man officiating crews cannot do a satisfactory job of administering a modern day football game with its split-ends, wide flankers and slot-backs. To appease the schools which were a little pinched in the financial department the Officials' Association offered to supply the four-man teams for the same price as three but the offer was not acceptable to the Board of Managers.

To counter the stand taken by the Officials' Association, the Board of Managers has delegated Commissioner Lee Sims to form a new association and train the members to officiate as three-man crews. This seems to be an impossible task since it takes at least three years' experience officiating junior-varsity and reserve football before an official is ready to attempt a varsity game. In the meantime, football players in our CCAL will encounter dangerous hazards occasioned by playing in games which are being administered by inexperienced officiating crews. None of the 40 veteran officials in the Coast Counties Association has indicated he will join the new group.

It is hoped that a meeting of the minds between the Officials' Association and the Board of Managers can be realized before the actual blocking and tackling starts with the CCAL Jamboree on September 16.

PERFECT GAME STOPS BUILDERS SUPPLY NINE

Paul Artellan's Carmel Merchant softball team maintained the runner-up spot in the Pacific Grove Recreation League by downing the Carmel Builders Supply, 4 to 0, as Phil Ramirez tossed a perfect game at Gene Ricketts' gang. The crafty former Pine Cone hurler had his wide assortment of breaking stuff under perfect control as he mowed down the Builder swingers and kept them off the bases for the entire seven innings. Although he collected only six strikeouts, the excellent fielding support supplied by his teammates enabled the veteran flinger to check in with a perfect game.

Beryl Hartsock pitched a steady five-hitter for the Builders Supply but all five hits were of the extra-base variety as Marty Hansen, Dionicio Narvaez, Paul Ricketson, Ramirez and Manager Artellan all connected for two-base clouts. Sparkling fielding plays by Mike Ricketts and Walter Frey served to pull Hartsock out of trouble when the Merchants threatened to put together a big inning.

The Merchants are slated for more league action tonight when they square off against Monterey Texaco at the Pacific Grove softball field. Artellan's gang still has a slim chance to cop the second-half title if the front-running Peninsula Paint aggregation stumbles in one of its last two games.

CIRCLING THE BASES

A major upset was recorded in the Monterey Recreation Department's Socko Softball League last Friday eevning as Pacific Grove Recreation Club upset the previously-undefeated Carmel Youth Center gang, 4 to 2, to tighten up the chase for the first-half championship. The Carmel lads were finding the competition in the power-laden Socko League to their liking in the first Friday's clash. Jack Giles, Carmel's YC Director, provided the soft tosses for the opposition in Friday's tilt, allowing the PG batters to dig in and power

Agnes Moorehead Gives Fascinating Performance At Wharf On Same Bill With Fry's A Phoenix Too Frequent

BY VIRGINIA SHAW

The mysterious magic something implied by people who love it when they speak of The Theatre may be directly apprehended in the magnificent person of Miss Agnes Moorehead, whom good fortune—aided by the Brock-Parker-Carson management and the director-entrepreneur team of Joseph Cotten and Charles Laughton—has brought for five days to the stage of the Wharf Theatre in Monterey.

Miss Moorehead's one-woman show, irritatingly if accurately entitled That Fabulous Redhead, is an exhilarating demonstration of what the theatre can communicate, and an audience delight in. The visible elements of this experience are a gothic-looking furnishing which serves as frame, seat and bookstand for the mobile Miss Moorehead; an armload of nicely battered books; a blue velvet footstool; and finally, the great lady herself; apricot hair piled over emphatic, unforgettable features (tilted, glittering eyes, the famous mouth like a child's drawing of a bird in flight) which flicker from patrician to pixie; supply dancer's body gloriously Dior-draped in trailing mauve chiffon. Add a fully-orchestrated voice, and the glow of the ineffable called style or technique, and you have Agnes Moorehead. She is ageless, wonderful, and very beautiful.

Her performance has the simplicity of so many magnificent things: all art, all seemingly artless. She first briskly loosens her audience with anecdotes, ancient recipes and household hints; then captures it with a fully acted-out reading of James Thurber's tender, uproariously funny portrait of his mother entitled Lavender with a Difference. A transposition to the minor with Edna St. Vincent Millay's poignant Ballad of the Harp Weaver is followed with superb irrelevance and rich humor in the story of Moses and the Bullrush retold in the special version of Daphne, the Moorehead family's "mammy".

Miss Moorehead then reads from the Bible the story of the Flood, following its perfect and moving simplicity with the elegant mauve prose of Proust describing the courtesan Odetta Swann. The performance concludes with a passage from Shaw's Back to Methuselah on the meaning of art—but Miss Moorehead has already demonstrated it. Her entire presentation is linked and jewelled with personal reminiscences, comments, whiplash asides, and animated with her superb mimicry and wit. In all, if director Laughton—who pioneered "bare-stage readings"—forged the format of her show, Miss Moorehead tempers it with her own glowing talent. Approximately 800 people Tuesday night left the theatre dead in love with her.

The first half of the rather oddly-balanced double bill is Christopher Fry's one-act comedy A Phoenix Too Frequent, which deals with a young Grecian widow whose virtuous intent to follow her spouse to the underworld is banished by love and life in the form of a handsome soldier. The production, directed by Joseph Cotten, is slickly staged and beautifully acted by a trio of talented young people: a lovely blonde named Mayo Loizeaux as the seductible widow, Dynameme; a delightful comedienne, Louise Vincent, making a notable American stage debut as the earthy handmaiden, Doto; and as the gallant, gullible Tegeus, a fine and versatile actor-director, Richard Gray, who is managing producer for the whole show package as well as its expert in lighting and set design. In spite of the excellence of the production, though, Phoenix seems too fragile and static for Fry's freight of heavily-ornamented speech. And in combination with the banquet offered by Miss Moorehead, it's almost too much for one evening.

Three more evenings remain in which to enjoy this remarkable "double bill", tonight, tomorrow and Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Charles W. McDaniel, recently appointed Western Regional Manager for Fostoria Corporation, Fostoria, Ohio, manufacturers of chemical pumps, infrared ovens, lighting equipment and other industrial products, will open offices in Carmel.

He is chairman of the Board of Trustees, Church of the Wayfarer, and Vice President of the Hi-Twelve Club. He is also a member of the York and Scottish Rite Masonic Bodies and Shrine and a life Loyal Member of Sigma Chi Fraternity. He lives in Carmel with his wife Mildred. Their two sons, Douglass and William, both served in World War II, in the Marine Corps and Air Force respectively. Each have three children.

Charles McDaniel, the son of a Methodist minister, was born in Muskingum County, Ohio, on January 10, 1897, and lived in Ohio continuously until moving to California in 1945. He attended Ohio Wesleyan University, Class of 1918, and, in the first World War, enlisted in the regular army and became 1st Sergeant of 210th Field Signal Battalion, 10th Division. He was discharged as Master Signal Electrician in 1919.

After a successful career in the east as public relations and sales executive for several corporations, and proprietor of his own advertising agency, he came to California in 1945, living in Burlingame and Menlo Park. He came to make his home in Carmel in March 1958.

park use a triangular piece of land at Mission and Third near Camino Real. The property is too small for a building site. If it were added to adjacent property and a right-of-way condemned, the land could be developed as a motel site, Commissioner Hugh Smith said. He added that the steep wooded property was picturesque and can be seen from a main entrance to town. He also recommended that if the city acquires the property, native shrubbery, if it dies, should be replaced with identical planting.

Excess footage signs recommended for council approval were Village Texaco Service, San Carlos and Fifth; also at Carmel Plaza for I. Magnin. The first sign is painted carved wood, the second raised cast metal letters to be placed on two frontages of a corner location. The commission also approved Carmel Plaza signs for Sambo's Pancake House and the Plaza corporation.

A building permit was granted to J. M. Scales for two additional apartments with four off-street parking spaces at an existing two-apartment development on Lincoln between Seventh and Eighth.

The commission denied the application of John K. Chow to replace small-pane windows with plate glass at the Oriental Shop on Dolores Street. They extended the Carmel Plaza Garage building permit for 180 days because of delay caused by a Superior Court suit to halt construction.

Commissioners will meet again With Carmel Valley Property Owners Association as soon as Ed Demars of the county planning staff is free to attend a meeting. Sizes of lots at the Valley mouth will be discussed.

Admiral W. K. Fisher asked commissioners to look at two lots at southeast corner of Ocean and Torres. He said the lots may be available to the city for parking lot or city park use. He said that the proposed trailer park at the Valley mouth, turned down by the county planning commission, showed there was a necessity for complete rezoning of the lower Valley. Uses incompatible to Carmel Master Plan were permitted in this area under use permits, Admiral Fisher pointed out.

Art On The Peninsula—

Patricia Cunningham will have a show of 32 of her paintings at the Artists Guild of America Galleries, Monte Verde and Ocean, throughout the month of August. An invitational preview will be held on Sunday evening from 7:00-10:00 o'clock.

A fourth generation Californian, Patricia Cunningham belongs to a family associated with the history of this area. Her great-grandfather, Delos Ashley, was Mayor and Judge of Monterey, also State Treasurer.

Her home is in Carmel. She was the first woman president of the Carmel Art Association and has been a director of the Carmel Art Institute for 20 years.

She has exhibited her work in San Francisco at the Palace of the Legion of Honor, at the Portland Art Museum, Richmond Art Center, Santa Barbara Museum of Art, Washington State College Museum, Salt Lake City, also across the United States. She has taught at the University of California, Mills College and Cranbrook Academy of Art, Michigan, and won many awards for her work.

Zyta Laky Elected Life Fellow, Royal Society Of Arts

The honor of being elected a Life Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts, London, has recently been accorded to Zyta Laky, Carmel artist and director of The Laky Galleries on San Carlos Street.

Zyta Laky began her professional studies at the Royal Academy of Arts in Budapest and continued under the guidance of several outstanding European masters. She has successfully exhibited her paintings since the age of 19 and won many awards. She has also won recognition for her singular contributions as a teacher of art, giving unselfishly of her talent and knowledge to aspiring young artists. Her most recent venture in the field of art is the creation of The Laky Galleries.

The Royal Society of Arts is one of the oldest organizations of its kind in the world. It was founded in Great Britain in 1754 for the purpose of "the encouragement of arts." Included among its members were such famous men as Horace Walpole, Thomas Chippendale, Sir Joshua Reynolds and Samuel Johnson. The Charter of Incorporation for the Society was granted by Queen Victoria in 1847, nearly 100 years after its founding.

An early custom of the Society was the annual presentation of prizes as rewards for the distinguished services or contributions to the arts of Great Britain. More recently it has become international in scope, with the honor of election being bestowed upon men and women of distinction in the arts.

Children's Workshop Play Opens Saturday In Forest Theater

Carmel's Forest Theater has become active for the first time this summer as The Children's Drama Workshop, under the direction of DeVera Marcus, prepares to present The Emperor's New Clothes. Written by Charlotte Chorpenning, the play is based upon the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale.

The cast of more than 20 is composed of children of the Monterey Peninsula, all between the ages of six and 14. As part of the Workshop's program in drama education, some of the children have also worked on set design and construction, sound effects, costumes and publicity.

Ann McElroy Fry, who recently made a hit in the area with her performance in The Skin of Our Teeth at the Golden Bough Circle Theater, has made a valuable contribution to this production, as all four of her daughters are appearing in The Emperor's New Clothes. Other Carmel youngsters who have major roles are Susan Tescher as Zar, Stanton Gray as the vain emperor, Kathleen Goulding and Ann Michelle Kraus, alternating as the beautiful empress, Tom Poulos as the general, and Jerry Zellhoefer as the wicked Han.

The Emperor's New Clothes opens Saturday and will also play on Sunday, and August 5, 6 and 7. All performances will start at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon at the Forest Theater.

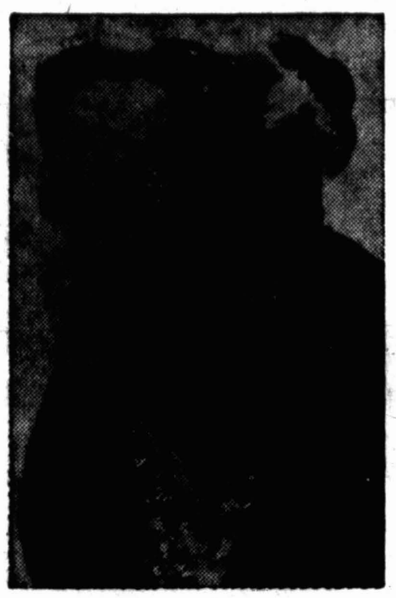
Knopf Publishes Elizabeth Clemons' Book On Shells

Shells Are Where You Find Them, an identification book by Elizabeth Clemons of Pebble Beach, has been released by the publishing firm of Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

Planned as a primer for young shell collectors, the book is equally interesting to adult novices. Illustrations in black and white by Joe Gault, a Florida shell collector, are excellent both in identification detail and artistic arrangement. Common and scientific names of each shell accompany the illustrations.

The 86-page text is divided into four sections: Where to Find Shells and How to Collect Them; Animals with One Shell (gastropoda and univalves); Animals with Two Shells (pelecypoda or bivalves); and Animals with Shells Made in Sections. Collection localities are listed. Unfortunately, these are predominately situated on the Atlantic Coast but Pacific Coast beginning collectors will find much of value to them in the volume—M.L.



Agnes Moorehead appears tonight through Saturday in That Fabulous Redhead directed by Charles Laughton at the Wharf Theatre and Opera House in Monterey. Accompanying Miss Moorehead's performance will be Christopher Fry's short comedy A Phoenix Too Frequent co-starring English actor Richard Gray and Mayo Loizeaux and directed by Joseph Cotten. Curtain time, 8:30 o'clock.

August 8 Deadline For Arts And Crafts County Fair Entries

Artists and craftsmen from throughout the county will have the opportunity to show off their talents, and perhaps profit by so doing, at the Monterey County Fair.

The Fair's Art Show, open to sculptors as well as professional and amateur artists, offers competitive opportunities to artists whose forte is traditional or contemporary, and whose special medium is water or oil.

In the Crafts Department classes are open in ceramics, jewelry, metals, leather, prints, textile decoration, stone cutting and polishing, weaving, woodworking and other special classes, such as mosaics.

Deadline for submitting entry blanks, for both departments is August 8. There is no entry fee for either the Art Show or Crafts Department.

Blanks may be obtained at the fairgrounds office, P.O. Box 1151, Monterey. Fair dates are August 24 through 28.

tions from the large audience. It had seemed to this writer that just as folk songs have come down from the people and gradually assumed more definite form, the simple phrases of the music of the Play of Daniel evolved likewise from the feeling for the action and emotions irrespective of any preconceived form, and grew accordingly.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Ludwig Altman's second organ recital at the Wayfarer again exhibited his always scholarly and interesting playing, and excelled his former program inspirationally, in a chronology of Bach's musical growth. Like Beethoven, the heights of Bach's contrapuntal and spiritual power were reached in his latest years. This was particularly evident in contrasting the Organ Chorale on Thy Throne I Now Approach, dictated from his death-bed to his pupil Altikoe, and the youthful attraction to technical display in How Strange is Our Life, written as a boy of 16 in 1700. The tender beauty and heavenly thought of the last sensitive composition was impressively accomplished by Altman on the good Wayfarer organ, besides nine other significantly progressive pieces. It was an inspiring and restful hour. No Carmel Festival would now seem complete without Altman's recitals.

THURSDAY NIGHT

A Baroque Christmas was the theme of Thursday night's concert. It was an extremely interesting one in presenting compositions that were the prototype of Spanish church music into the Eighteenth Century. Rosemary Waller and Dorothy Bales, violinists, John Cox and Thomas Hall, violaists, and Lawrence Lesser, cello, appeared as soloists in the Concerto Grosse by Locatelli which opened. Its largo-grave movement, delicately suggestive of the Christmas birth, was carried out in fine modulation by all concerned. Victoria's Magnificat sext toni for three Choirs and Instruments employed the rare arrangement of the choruses in three different parts of the auditorium, representing the Trinity. Salgo conducted all this en masse, facing the audience, and the work was heightened by the vocal quartet of Nancy Foster, soprano, Jacqueline Layng, contralto, Richard Rippel, tenor, and Roderick Risto, bass. The rare tonal effects obtained from the tutti was an outstanding moment of the whole week, in a work that was not as complicated in form as the placing of its parts would have seemed, and strings and voices co-ordinated perfectly.

Vivaldi's Winter Concerto from The Seasons became a masterly rendition at the hands of soloist Rosemary Waller who sounded its descriptive qualities with all the dexterity and inspiration of her artistic maturity and responded to a great ovation with Salgo and the orchestra. A second Magnificat, that of J. S. Bach in D Major, with its six vocal soloists, two solo flutists, one oboe with the entire chorus, Festival Chorale and orchestra was performed brilliantly. The work was composed in 1713 in Leipzig and produced on the first feast day of Christmas. This great masterpiece is a test of voices and instruments, which the choruses met in a full-toned victory and delivery reflecting the thoroughness of preparation. Marie Gibson in the solo and trio used her clear, sweet voice with discretion, as also did the contraltos Margot Blum and Florine Hemmings and the mezzo-soprano Key McCracken. There were a few complaints of not hearing some of them well in the balcony and other parts which undoubtedly was caused by spotty acoustics, for they were all clear to me. Raymond Fabrizio and Louise Di Tullio, flutists, as well as oboist Duste, carried their telling parts above the excellent orchestra rendition. Enthusiasm waxed strong for this program.

FRIDAY MORNING

Miklos Schwalb, the Hungarian internationally famous pianist, now on the faculty of the Boston Conservatory, which is perhaps the most conservative of all the music schools in America, played a recital at the Woman's Club consisting of Johann Christian Bach's Sonata in E Major and the J. S. Bach Fifteen Three Part Inventions, the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue and the English Suite in A Minor. His strong touch and speed produced a definitely phrased execution in a classical manner that made the counterpoint and polyphony distinctly clear to his audience which crowded round him afterwards to congratulate and ask questions as he is an authority on dexterity studies which he has recorded. His recital was a prelude to the following day when he played a concerto with the orchestra. (See Saturday evening review.)

FRIDAY EVENING

The Concerts Spirituel in Paris were established by Anne Danican-Philidor in 1724, for which both sacred and secular compositions were performed. They were a commonplace event in coffee houses in the Eighteenth Century where both instrumental and vocal music were part of the menu and by the date of Bach's death in 1750, from two to three hundred regularly attended these concerts. Bach is presumed to have directed some of them in Zimmerman's garden. A first performance in America of Scheiffelhut's Seventh Suite was given by the orchestra, and the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in A Major by C. P. E. Bach played by pianist Miklos Schwalb.

The Mozart Symphony in G Minor with which the concert ended was a triumph in the playing of the orchestra to which in response to "bravos" were added two extras, Mozart's Overture to the Marriage of Figaro and an Air from Bach's Second Orchestral Suite.

Schwalb's conservatively technical playing strongly dominated the orchestra throughout the Concerto and led the whole in speed and initiative in a brilliant performance of its kind for which he received enthusiastc recalls with Salgo. Eva Heinitz delighted again with a Telemann Suite in her fine musicianship and appeal in which the string players of the orchestra also distinguished themselves. Nancy Cronburg, soprano, delivered Handel's Aria from Cantata No. XII, an operatic work written by Handel for private performance at the time when opera was suppressed by edict of the Pope. It describes a distracted state in "the delirium of love" which Cronburg's high soprano timbre excellently suited, accompanied by first cellist Lawrence Lesser. She received an ovation for her strong delivery.

SATURDAY MORNING

The Lecture Recital by Roberta and Colin Sterne on virginals, psaltry, recorder, harpsichord, Baroque flute and cromorne was instructive and charming. These old instruments, except the harpsichord, a modern one lent by Margaret Fabrizio, were demonstrated by these versatile artists in Thirteenth Century Flemish, Palestrina, Frescobaldi, Couperin, Froberger and Telemann pieces covering the period from 1524 to 1767. All were explained by Colin Sterne as each was played in solo or together. The Sternes are favorite specialists in music of the era covered, and were in several other performances, especially the opening concert in the Bach Concerto for Two Recorders and Harpsichord with Ralph Linsley, without whom no Carmel Festival would seem complete. The musical charm and history of the instruments was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience.

County Fair Photo Exhibit Entries Deadline Aug. 14

Russell Cummins and Beauford B. Fisher of Pacific Grove and E. C. Forsyth of Monterey will judge entries submitted to the Monterey County Fair's exhibit of black and white photography.

This jury will select those prints to be hung, and will award ribbons to those placing first, second and third. Prints previously exhibited at the Fair will not be accepted.

Each photographer is limited to four prints, which must be the sole work of the exhibitor. No entry fee is required.

Entries are limited to photographers living in Monterey, Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, San Benito and San Luis Obispo Counties. Prints must be taken to the fairgrounds not later than August 14.

Classes in the show include landscapes, architecture, texture and pattern, portraits, marines, people, animals, children, sports and miscellaneous.

Entry blanks may be obtained at the Monterey County Fairgrounds, P.O. Box 1151, Monterey.

Forty students and teachers from all over the United States, in Carmel to attend the national ballet seminar at the Nix Ballet Studio, will dance in the Snow White Ballet tomorrow and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock in the Nix Ballet Theatre, Mission and Eighth Streets. The Pine Cone will give free tickets for each performance to the first five persons, aged 10-18, who request them at the Pine Cone office.

Choreography for Snow White was created by Joanne Nix who will direct the ballet with Olga Fricker, senior examiner and west coast representative of the Cecchetti Council of America. Miss Fricker conducts a ballet school in Los Angeles and has a licentiate certificate in the Imperial Society of Teachers of Dancing of London. She is one of the six instructors at the month-long national Carmel Ballet Course now in session at the Nix Studio.

Among the dancers will be Linda Hughes who is under contract as a dancer to Walt Disney Studios. She is one of the 75 persons studying in the local national ballet seminar.

A second Snow White presentation will be given next week end.

Dr. C. D. Collins

Dr. Clinton Darwin Collins died on Sunday in his home at Santa Lucia and Casanova Streets after a period of failing health. He came from Fresno to live here permanently last November but had owned his Carmel home for 15 years and visited here frequently. Mrs. Gunnar Norberg of Carmel is his daughter.

Dr. Collins was born in Fresno on May 24, 1884. He was a member of a pioneer Fresno County family that came west from Tennessee after the Civil War. His father, James Darwin Collins, was the first sheriff of Fresno County, also represented that district in the California legislature.

Dr. Collins was the middle child of a family of 11 sons and daughters. He graduated in 1911 from Cooper Medical College, now Stanford University Medical School, and returned to practice in Fresno. His marriage to Gertrude Drew took place the following year.

He was a World War I veteran and during World War II served on the Fresno County Draft Board assigning physicians and dentists to military service.

During his years as a surgeon, associated in practice with Dr. Lawrence Senior, Dr. Collins answered calls all over the San Joaquin Valley, often in adverse weather conditions. For 11 years he was head of the Fresno County Hospital. He was a past president of the Fresno County Medical Association and a member of Sunnyside Country Club in Fresno.

In addition to his wife and daughter in Carmel, Dr. Collins is survived by a son, Colonel Thomas Arthur Collins (USAF), stationed with the Surgeon General's Office in Washington, D.C.; three sisters, Mrs. Robert Heiskell and Mrs. Katherine Byrd of Fresno and Mrs. James Nicholson of Porterville; two brothers, Robert Fulton Collins and Joseph P. Collins of Fresno; and five grandchildren, including Karin and Eric Norberg of Carmel.

Private funeral services were held in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea followed by inurnment in Academy Cemetery near Fresno.

Waterfall Feature Of County Fair's Flower Exhibit

A beautiful bubbling waterfall with a pool at its base will be the newest feature of the Monterey County Fair's floriculture exhibit. The waterfall will furnish the forest-like background for many of the ferns and orchids to be entered in the Fair.

Also a new feature of this exhibit will be the addition of another orchid class. Open to commercial growers, individuals, and/or orchid societies, the class will consist of displays of cut or potted tropical foliage. Minimum space allotted for each display is 50 feet, half the size of the other orchid display class.

Divisions in the Floriculture Department include feature booths, commercial displays, cut flowers, potted plants, arrangements and table settings.

Special awards will be given exhibitors for the most outstanding amateur and tropical arrangements, specimen, commercial and amateur garden and educational exhibit.

To enter, one need simply fill out an entry blank, and submit it to the fairgrounds by August 13. Premium books, listing flower classes and awards, may still be obtained at the Monterey County Fairgrounds, P.O. Box 1151, Monterey.

Fair dates are August 24 through 28.

Letters . . .

Box 236, Noranda, Quebec, Canada.

Carmel Pine Cone:

As soon as I saw the end of the paper in my box this evening, I could hardly wait to get home and read it. This I have done thoroughly, and how nostalgic you have made me feel—in my mind's eye my beloved Carmel. I walk again up the hill on Ocean Avenue in the dark. I see again the sweep and swell of the blue Pacific, and feel the heat of that white sand . . . you have taken my mind from our cold and hail and storm to your serene and tranquil way of life.

Sincerely yours,
Roxie Joy.

Ed. note. Mrs. Joy's letter was sent after she had read the Bach Festival edition of July 14. Noranda is a mining town about 200 miles south of Hudson's Bay.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

Marcia Rider Is Delicious Gigi In Attractively Staged Production At Golden Bough Circle Theatre

Gigi, the gamine created in a story of Colette and since transposed by less warm, wise hands to stage, screen and musical comedy, returns irresistibly to life through Marcia Rider in a production at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre directed by Nick Zanides.

Colette's tale of a budding schoolgirl being groomed for a life role as a grand cocotte by a trio of old grads in the profession—a flighty mama, doting grandmama, and elegant aunt—loses some of its bouquet in the dramatization by Anita Loos, but Gigi herself is an indestructible delight. And Marcia Rider—pretty, playful and gawky — graceful as a halfgrown kitten — gives a portrayal which combines spirit and sensitivity in just the right proportion.

The champagne quality of her performance tends to make other contributions to the Circle production seem less sparkling. The supporting cast (one which is international, if notably non-Gallic) seldom manages to achieve the buoyant style of its star. Babs Richardson comes through most happily as Gigi's warmhearted grandmother, Mme. Alvarez. Valerio Giusi is charming as Gigi's wealthy, worldly suitor, Gaston Lachaille, though he seems a trifle dazed by his role. Dythel M. Stevens and Mildred Cushing each achieve some bright moments as the faded but formidable former beauty, Aunt Alicia, and Gigi's giddy, opera-singing mother, Andree. Completing the cast are Jose Perez as Alicia's butler and Marian Oakley as a garrulously inept maid.

The show is attractively staged by Douglas Zug with a dual setting of the Alvarez apartment where Gigi tempts and teases her Gaston, and Alicia's boudoir where she reluctantly receives advanced instruction in the manners becoming a courtesan. Marian Oakley and Eugene Walker provide the turn-of-the-century costumes, and Lucy Beebe is the lady of the lights. Assisting with properties and production are Peggy McCulley, Andi Wurzmann, Beatrice Pepper, Zeala Wright, Dr. Broaddus and R. Rolleston West.

Gigi plays Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 8:30 o'clock, alternating with the Circle's weekend production, Hobson's Choice.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Now that the Bach is over, the bat has gone back to his battery, and quiet memories are the order of our days, we rise to modestly remark that one of the few copies of the play Daniel, edited by Noah Greenberg, with the Latin text, and even costumes, was in the collection of the Carmel library. We bought it last spring when it was first published with the idea that it might come in handy in a town like ours, and lo, Ben Daniel's name led all the rest. But not ours, for nobody mentioned our having a copy. It must be that everyone is so used to receiving superlative service from our library that they expected us to have a copy. We still have it, and if you want to go over it line by line, come in and borrow it.

If you are one of the great group of people who believe an evergreen is a fir tree, reading The Evergreens by James H. Beale, will serve to enlighten you no end. Evergreens are a large and varied group of plants which even include certain bamboos, the laurels, and rhododendrons, and old favorites such as pyracanthas. Photographs illustrate the book, a few of which are in color.

Another book has arrived on reducing intelligently, an activity we all talk about but few of us do. This one is by Gaynor Maddox and is entitled The Safe and Sure Way to Reduce. The author claims that by following his method you can lose 52 pounds a year, without pills or drugs. Most of these books on reducing are a bit alike, but one will appeal to one patron and another have more validity for another patron and so it goes. But all have one point in common when they state that you will live longer, healthier lives, if you will take off your extra pounds.

A collection of essays by Manes Sperber is called The Achilles Heel. The essay is a device for promoting relaxed reading. These were written in French and translated for you by Constantine Fitzgibbon.

A really great teacher, Charles Townsend Copeland of Harvard, was known as Copey to thousands of Harvard men. He lived to be 93 years old, most of those years a hypochondriac who feared death, and he exerted a tremendous influence on the literary life and output of his times. His biography is entitled Copey of Harvard and it was written by J. Donald Adams, one of his students.

There are ten new novels, but we won't discuss them because you will find them for yourselves.

John Rennels Flew Home Sunday

John Rennels is back in Carmel this week after driving his children, Susie and Johnnie, to join their mother in Moose Lake, Minnesota. He left the car with them and came home by plane.

Mrs. Rennels left for Moose Lake in June before school closed, following the death of her father, Richard T. Hart, Mayor of Moose Lake and for 20 years a member of the Minnesota House of Representatives. Mr. Rennels reports that the county fair in the Moose Lake area will be dedicated this year to the memory of Mr. Hart.

Tea Ceremony For MPVS Tour

On the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services' Garden Tour and Flower Show, August 10, the final Oriental touch will be added to Mrs. Kaye Scott's Japanese garden when Mrs. Yasuko Nishimura performs the rites of a ceremonial tea, during the hours of the tour, from 10:00 o'clock in the morning to 6:00 in the evening. She will be assisted by her small son and daughter, Kimio and Momoyo, and by her guest, Miss Akemi Ito, all of whom will be dressed in traditional Japanese costume. In addition, Miss Ito will perform a classical dance which tells the story of a geisha girl who was sent to the home of Townsend Harris, the first American envoy to Japan, 100 years ago. The Centennial celebration of this event is now taking place so the dance is particularly appropriate.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

An answer to problems of strife, jealousy, and hate will be set forth Sunday at all Christian Science churches.

Highlighting the Lesson-Sermon on the subject of "Love" are several inspiring experiences of David which include Samuel's account of the sparing of Saul's life (I Sam. 26).

Citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include this statement on the protective power of divine Love:

"At all times and under all circumstances, overcome evil with good. Know thyself, and God will supply the wisdom and the occasion for a victory over evil. Clad in the panoply of Love, human hatred cannot reach you. The cement of a higher humanity will unite all interests in the one divinity" (571:15).

The Golden Text is from Romans (13:10): "Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

Knights On World Cruise

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Knight and their son, Buzz, who graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara last month, sailed on Sunday from San Francisco on the Arcadia. They will circle the world before returning to Carmel on December 10.

Honolulu is their first port of call, then Yokohama and Kobe. After leaving Japan they will visit Hong Kong, Australia, Singapore, Ceylon, go through the Suez Canal and across the Mediterranean to Lisbon. They will leave the boat in Portugal and go to Marseilles where a car will be waiting for them, also Allene Knight who is working in Europe in the U.S. Civil Service with the Rhineland Club. She and her parents and brother will tour Europe by car, ending the overland trip at Rotterdam. Mr. and Mrs. Knight and Buzz will sail from the Dutch port and return to California through the Panama Canal.

Lindsay-Oliver Bach Guests

Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver had an impromptu teaparty on Friday afternoon when 21 Bach Festival personalities called at her studio. Among them were Ludwig Altman, festival organist, and Mrs. Altman; pianist Miklos Schwalb from Boston, also Miss Myra Mosher, festival orchestra member; Mrs. Geoffrey Podmore of Honolulu, William Drake of Portland, Oregon, and Paul Sleaeblason of Los Angeles, all here to attend the festival. Another day Dr. Glynne Wickham, director of the Play of Daniel, and Mrs. Wickham called on Miss Lindsay-Oliver. On a third occasion Colin Sterne of Pittsburgh University, authority on ancient instruments, visited at her home.

Sally And Bill Jett Parents

A birth announcement in the form of a flight log arrived this week from Lieutenant William S. Jett III (USN) and Mrs. Jett of 1932 Emerson Street, Palo Alto. It tells of the birth of their first child, Caroline L'Estrange, at the Palo Alto - Stanford Hospital on June 13. Her birth weight was nine pounds, one ounce. She has a half-sister and brother, Ann and Peter Berg.

Mrs. Richard W. Holt of Carmel, at present in Madrid, Spain, is the baby's grandmother. Her uncle is Richard W. Holt, Jr., a first classman at the United States Naval Academy, who is now with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and plans to spend summer leave with his mother in Madrid. Caroline's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William S. Jett Jr. of Mount Pleasant, South Carolina. Her great-grandfather is the Reverend Frederick H. Harding of Milledgeville, Georgia.

This fall, Lieutenant and Mrs. Jett will move to Norfolk, Virginia, where the former will report for duty with a carrier squadron. Soon after their arrival they plan a family reunion so that members of their families may meet Caroline.

Children's Play Given Saturday In Carmel Valley

White Oaks Summer Theatre presented its first children's theatre production, The Land of the Dragon, last Saturday afternoon. The play, which held the rapt attention of the children present, is a production of stimulated imagination. Much of the setting is provided by pantomimic definition. Chinese costumes provide added color.

The Land of the Dragon tells the story of a beautiful princess, Jade Pure, who believes that she is ugly through the schemes of her wicked aunt, Lady Precious Harp, the simpering Chancellor Covet Spring, and her three deceitful cousins. With the aid of the hero, Roadwanderer, and his dragon, Small One, she discovers her own beauty.

Through the confusion which follows with many suitors seeking her hand, she loses Roadwanderer. To win him back, Jade Pure sends a decree throughout the land that the man she marries must own a dragon. What follows is that fraudulent dragons enter in an effort to gain the throne, Roadwanderer is saved from the headman's block, the Princess is finally married in time to ascend the throne on her eighteenth birthday.

SATURDAY EVENING

We may have thought our chamber music concerts at Nepenthe to be unique, but a Concert at the Cafe Zimmerman in Leipzig, Saturday's program, couldy only be given on Holy Days or when opera was not open, according to a letters patent granted by Louis XIV in 1672. In spite of its name, all kinds of forms were used, including even popular songs.

J. S. Bach's Sacred Cantata No. 55 was sympathetically projected by the popular tenor James Schwabacher, followed by Galuppi's Aria for Clarinet and Strings for which Richard Waller was soloist in a highly musical and smooth performance. Rague's Symphony in D Major was a West Coast first performance and reflected great credit on the orchestra, as also did St. George's Symphonie Concertante for two violins and strings, with Rosemary Waller and Dorothy Bales in the solo parts. The latter half of the program was a work by Charpentier, the famous French writer with a great gift for melody. This Midnight Mass on Christmas Carols had for soloists Nancy Foster, Katherine Schlinger, sopranos; Florine Hemmings, contralto, Richard Riffel, tenor and Bruce Rensberg, bass, together with the Festival Chorus and Orchestra which rounded out the interesting performance.

SUNDAY

Two great performances of Saint Matthew's Passion became the culmination of the most successful festival known to Carmel. No one present on Sunday, and both houses were packed, could have departed without a deeply impressed sense of the significance and power of Bach's great work, and of the firmly planted festival to which Dene Denny gave the best of her life. Written in Leipzig and performed on Good Friday 1729, the story of the gospel of St. Matthew is in a series of episodal pictures with pauses that seem to give the listener a moment for meditation on what had just passed. Its profound musical utterance was sounded by the Twenty-third Bach choirs, orchestra and soloists as the ultimate of all that had preceded in the week's concerts.

Salgo's attitude and conducting enhanced the serious beauty and drama of the work, and when he twice turned to have the audience join in the printed chorale on the program it was met with full and conscientious participation that was inspiring and emotionally a proof of the impact of the spiritual message. Few could have failed to be moved by the reverent delivery of Metropolitan baritone Theodore Uppman as Jesus, for he projected the impersonation with great perception and feeling throughout his admirable singing. There has, perhaps, been none so completely satisfying in my experience of Carmel Bach Festivals, and those who secured him for us are to be thanked for a most valuable contribution to the highest standards.

James Schwabacher as the Evangelist telling the story, was, as always a fine musican in his tenor delivery. He is a favorite and added to his reputation with this year's performance. The vocal quartet of Marie Gibson, Margot Blum, Patrick Daugherty and Roderick Risto, as well as the other parts of Peter, Judas, Pilate, etc., were all conscientiously and fittingly rendered, particularly by Marie Gibson and Margot Blum in the last duo arias, given with deep feeling. To record the whole as tremendously impressive is to accept all the tonal work of soloists, choirs and orchestra as a general ensemble that reached heights not hitherto attained, due to the overall direction, devotion and genius of Sandor Salgo for whom everyone stood in honor and respect at the end. No festival audience has been so demonstrative as this year's sold-out houses, and in spite of festivals of jazz it is a sign of the growing appreciation of the finest music and regard for the great musicians time has proven. The Carmel Bach Festival of 1960 is therefore an important milestone in its career for which the faithful music assistants, Angie Machado, Priscilla Salgo, Ralph Linsley; and all who helped, with capable Michel MacKay as its business head, are to be thanked.

their way past the league-leaders. . . . The Monterey Peninsula Babe Ruth League All-Stars breezed through their first challenge in the District playoffs by downing the Seaside All-Stars, 7 to 2, in last Sunday's playoffs at Hollister. Pacific Grove High's Bob Fuller pitched a solid four-hitter to throttle the powerful Seaside hitters and give the Peninsula gang a chance to advance in the Babe Ruth Playoffs. Jim Colletto, the best baseball prospect on the Monterey Peninsula, collected three blows in four chances to pace the Monterey batting attack against the Seaside hurlers. Carmel's All-Star selections, Forrest Cornwall and Steve Fairfield, did not see action in the opening clash but will be on tap for Saturday's playoff action at Salinas. . . . Carmel's Little Leaguers journeyed to San Francisco last Saturday to take in the Pittsburg Pirate-San Francisco Giant game and came home singing the praises of Juan Marichal, Giant rookie pitcher, who picked up his second victory since becoming a Giant two weeks ago. The Little League gang picked a perfect day for the San Francisco trip, enjoying Candlestick Park under ideal weather conditions. . . . Andy Gray and Graves Cox are the latest additions to the Youth Center Gold Star Club, having suffered the humiliation of striking out against Director Jack Giles' pitching in the Thursday night YC Intramural League. This is the second offense for Gray and the first for Cox in their five years' action in the YC League. . . . Word from the Pittsburgh Pirate baseball chain shows that ex-Padre Tim O'Shea has again been plagued by arm trouble and has been sent home for treatment. The hard - throwing lefty injured his arm in training camp last year and missed most of the season. Apparently recovered after treatments during the winter, O'Shea again joined the Pirate training camp this spring only to suffer recurring arm trouble soon after the season started. . . . The Woolsey-Baxter Giants of the Carmel Community League have taken a firm grip on first place as second-half action swings to the midway point. In first-half action, the Giants were well off the pace but have shown remarkable improvement to sport a 3-0 record the second time around. Tuesday evening, the Giants clipped the Kelsey - King Dodgers, 5 to 2, as Greg Jones and Tim Mosolf teamed up to pitch a solid four-hitter.

Buffington Heads Budget Committee For Youth Center

Carmel Youth Center adult board members Tuesday afternoon took a preliminary step for a youth center fund drive before October. They also re-elected P. A. McCreery to the office of president, Mrs. Robert Waldo Hicks, secretary - treasurer. Councilman John Chitwood was elected vice president.

In preparation for the fund drive Mr. McCreery appointed a budget committee to ascertain the financial needs of maintaining the center for a year. James Buffington was appointed chairman of this committee, to serve with Dr. Robert E. Newton, representing the High School P-TA on the board; Mr. Chitwood, the city; Mrs. Ian Belangee, Carmel Woman's Club.

They will meet on Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Youth Center to review past financial records of the center prepared by Chris Nedderson. From these, the committee will arrive at a budget for the coming year and the tentative amount to be raised by a fund drive.

Mr. McCreery stressed that the Youth Center is no longer associated with the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest. A letter from this organization read to the board, confirmed this fact. Mr. McCreery also pointed out that a second letter from the Carmel Unified School District indicated that trustees did not consider themselves obligated in the future to contribute $3,500, customary yearly contribution for Youth Center support from the school district. Mr. Buffington remarked that this support came from recreation tax funds. Therefore this financial aid most likely will still be available to the center, he hoped.

In a financial report presented to the adult board Tuesday, Youth Center funds on hand amount to $1,133.83. Cost of maintaining the center from January 1 - July 1 this year was $6,896.33. Funds received to date amount to $8,030.16. Of this amount $2,500 was contributed by the center's youth council. The money was raised by members' efforts, such as working at the Crosby Tournament.

Also formally announced at Tuesday's meeting was the internal revenue department's decision that the youth center has a tax-free status in regard to contributions. This matter was clarified for the benefit of the Community Chest which refused to release this year's allocation until the exemption status was confirmed.

J. O. Handley reported to other board members that the addition to the center auditorium was complete except for finishing under the floor joists, delayed because of lack of funds. He stated that $1,000 contributed by Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services had reduced the building fund deficit to $1,500. Mr Handley asked that all those who had helped with the building be sent letters of thanks from the board.

The youth council will express further appreciation of community support of the center with two events. On August 18 they will have a barbecue for members of the Carmel Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, later an open house for the community.

At the northeast corner of Twelfth Avenue and Monte Verde Street, the council will act on a request of Anne Domino. She wants to remove three acacias and replace them with any trees the council desires, although she, herself, would like to plant flowering plums. Reason for the removal is that the petitioner finds acacia pollen aggravates a sinus condition from which she suffers.

The selection committee for the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra announced yesterday their choice for a successor to Conductor Earl Bernard Murray is Ronald Ondrejka of New York City. He will live in Carmel and study with Dr. Richard Lert in Pasadena on a Rockefeller Advanced Grant for Conducting Study.

Ondrejka received his bachelor's and master's degrees in music at the Juilliard and Eastman music institutes. During his military service, 1954-56, he conducted the U. S. Seventh Army Symphony. Since then he has been assistant conductor at Radio City Music Hall and had guest conductor engagements with the Pittsburgh Symphony and the Wheeling West Virginia Symphony.

The selection committee, Angie Machado, Eben Whittlesey, Georgia van Richter, Ray Fabrizio, King Benton and Sam Bell, became interested in him during the recent Asilomar Conductors' institute.

County planners turned down Bud Giles' application for re-classification of land adjacent to Carmel River and Highway 1 for a trailer court, in public hearing Tuesday.

Organizations and individuals who presented formal objections at the hearing, in person, by letter or by resolution: The Carmel Planning Commission, The Carmel Citizens Committee, Carmel Unincorporated, Carmel Realty Company, Lower Carmel Valley Advisory Committee, Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, Carmel Meadows Association, Residents of Val Verde Road, South Carmel Homes, Rancho Rio Vista Property Association, Mr. and Mrs. William Rich, Joseph Broadman, Dr. Joseph Moto.

Speaking for the trailer court: Giles himself; Bruno Odello from whom Giles intended to lease the land, Frank Lucido and Mrs. Floyd Kimball of Monterey.

At yesterday's Carmel Planning Commission meeting Chairman Herbert Blanks was distressed that the Carmel Planning Commission did not have, in addition to its letter, personal representation at the hearing. Mrs. Talbert Josselyn planned to speak for the commission, but through a confusion of messages, did not receive authorization. There is no cause for regret. The Carmel Planning Commission did its work so well, months ago, that further representation was not needed.

The planners' unhesitating and outspoken disapproval, expressed when Giles presented his plans to them informally, served as the epicenter for the waves of opposition that spread from organization to organization.

This is one of the best jobs the Carmel Planning Commission has done.

Man! There were two real cool smokers at the planning commission meeting yesterday afternoon. We dug Chairman Herbert Blanks and City Attorney John Morse both puffing pale green Frappes.

Anderson Fined For Dumping Garbage In Beach Trash Cans

Judge Ray Baugh, Monterey Municipal Court, fined Andrew F. Anderson, Carmelo and Santa Lucia, yesterday when the latter pled guilty to dumping household garbage in a Carmel Beach trash receptacle.

Anderson said his wife had dropped a spoon in their home garbage disposal machinery, and while it was out of order they didn't know what to do with the garbage.

Judge Baugh fined him $26.75 but suspended all but $10.00 of the amount.

Sergeant William Ellis and Officer Del Wermuth of the Carmel Police Department saw Andrews driving away at 7:55 o'clock Saturday morning after he had dumped the garbage in the Scenic and Thirteenth trash can. They traced his identity through his car license number, and the department issued a complaint against him.

The beach trash cans are for trash, and picnic refuse only, Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann points out. Household garbage creates unsanitary conditions and additional unpleasantness for the street department crews which pick up and dispose of the contents of the beach cans.

Ambulance Meets Helicopter At High School Field

Carmel volunteer firemen with the Red Cross ambulance on Monday picked up two injured persons, flown to Carmel High School playfield by Army helicopter, following falls off a cliff at Sycamore Canyon Beach below Big Sur.

Taken to the hospital were Dorothy Habben and Charles Calhan, both of Berkeley. They were hurt when parts of a cliff on which they were standing crumbled.
